If there were wanting any further proof of this audaous rebel's wicked purpose, his proclamation abundant-supplies it. "In the name of the people of the United

"First, all armed forces of every description from coming into this Territory, under any pretence whatever. "Second, that all the forces in said Territory hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's notice to repel any and all such invasion. "Third, martial law is hereby declared to exist in this Territory from and after the publication of this preclamation, and no person shall be allowed to pass or repass into or through or from this Territory without a permit from the proper officer."

It is evident from the foregoing that Brigham has made extensive preparations to carry out his purpose, and that he is resolved to use them, and hold possession of a portion of the United States territory in defiance of the federal authority, against which he places himself in an attitude of defiance. It is alsurd to suppose that he considers himself authorized to take this ground by virtue of any law, or by the long-expired power delegated to him by the national Executive. He must know that, sustitutional law, they would be in no danger of surpation, tyranny, or oppression, in any one of their gal rights as citizens of the republic. The position hich he has taken cannot be otherwise considered as one of open revolt, and he must, and undoubtedly ill, be punished with proper severity for the great times of which he is already guilty. It may be that the lateness of the season will prevent the administration om taking any active steps immediately to crush the reellion, and vindicate the outraged supremacy of the fedral power; but so soon as the spring opens, such a force ill be ready to enter Utah as will teach Brigham Young and the rebellious horde who obey his orders that the arm will be ready to enter Utah as will teach Brigham Young and the rebellious horde who obey his orders that the arm of the United States is long enough to reach and strong enough to strike them, however far distant they may be, or however impregnable they may regard their position. Had the Mormons any real grievance to complain of, were they subjected to any law unjust in its operation or different from those to which their fellow-citizens in other parts of the Union are subject, their conduct would be less unaccountable, if not less unjustifiable. But such is not the case. They do not presume to allege that they are aggrieved, or that, in any social, religious, or political sense, they are not allowed the same freedom as is sense, they are not allowed the same freedo anted to every other community in the Union. We repeat our conviction that the government take the best and most efficient steps to punish the Mor-mon treason and vindicate the majesty of the law; and we are assured that the unanimous voice of the country will support them in the performance of this unavoidable

The Prairie Farmer speaks of the production of butter at the West as a business destined to become great and flourishing. Probably few eastern folks have thought of this. We get breadstuffs, pork, hams, etc., from the West as the main source of supply, while the butter we use is entirely eastern. In view of the immense prairies of the West, it is singular that butter has not become a stand they.

The subject of lotteries has again engaged the attention of the Georgia legislature, through a resolution which was introduced, proposing to renew the management of the Fort Gaines lottery. The whole system was subject to a thorough examination by the legislators, and out one opinion was expressed upon its merits, plainly indicating that public sentiment in that State has recently undergone a wholesome change. Lotteries were unanimously pronounced a curse and a swindle; and so great is the hostility to the entire system, that it is not only probable that the Fort Gaines bill will be defeated, but it is evident that the last charter has been granted by the authorities of the State. authorities of the State.

In the city of London coal is sent to consumers in sacks containing one hundred pounds each. These are loaded on large carts, drawn by enormous horses, with scales and weights to each cart, and, if desired by the purchaser, the sack is weighed by the driver. When the honesty of the coal merchant and the integrity of the driver is well established, the weighing of the sack is seldom required. And in the purchase of a cartload of sacks, some three or four of them, taken promiscuously, are tested by the scales, and if found correct, the weighing of the remainder of the load is dispensed with. This mode of buying and selling coal is the result of many years experience in the vast city of London.

A whole family in Bradford, Mass., have been committed to the jail in Lawrence, every member being addicted to the grossest habit of intemperance. The family consisted of a mother, 55; eldest son 28, another 21, the youngest 16 years of sage, and a sister of the mother. The eldest son died on Sunday, in prison, of delirium tremens, and the youngest is in a very critical state. The father died some months since in the same manner.

In the course of a recent sermon, the Rev. A. I. Ritchie, of Dundee, Scotland, mentioned, as illustrations of the extent of the bereavements caused by the Indian mutiny, that a gentleman in that country had lost twenty-two relatives in India within six weeks; and that out of thirteen of a family party which met last year in St. Andrews, only one is now living, twelve having gone out to India and fallen victims to the mutiny.

The Mobile Register of Saturday says: "The Granada, whose arrival and detention at the Quamutine station was announced on yesterday, brought to New Orleans from California, in gold. $163,000; from Havana, in specie, $85,228; and from New York, $334,897; total, $583,-125." Let it come. There is nothing like it, after all.

We learn from the message of Gov. McRac, of Missis-sippi, that the New Orleans, Jackson, and Great North-ern Bailroad Company have the requisite means for com-pleting the road to Jackson by the first of March next. There are now thirty-feur miles upon which the rails have not been laid. The distance from New Orleans to Canton by the line of this road is 207 miles.

At the last meeting of the board of directors of the White Sulphur Springs Company, H.m. J. B. Morton was elected president of the company, in place of Mr. Gifford. Mr. Edward Cunningham, of Powhatan county, was appointed as general superintendent of the affairs at the springs.

THE ACTION OF THE KANSAS CONVENTION.

THE ACTION OF THE KANSAS CONVENTION.

The black-republican journals, and their aiders and abettors, are laboring to produce the impression that even if a majority of the people of Kansas should vote for the constitution subout the clause relating to slavery, still that instrument would be silent upon that yeared question, and slavery would be recognised in the new State by virtue of the federal constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court and enforced by the national administration. But the publication of the schedule of submission has made this position untenable. The fact is now clear to any one not heat on misconstruing and misinterpreting words plain as a sunbeam, for the purpose of distracting the democracy of the country and thus aiding the abolitionists, that the people of Kansas have it fully in their power to prohibit slavery forever if they please to order it so by their votes. The whole question of slavery or no slavery is left to the electors, in compliance with the provisions of the Kansas Nebraska bill. In proof of this position we refer to the schedule. The eleventh section of that instrument provides that on the 21st day of December next the vote of the people shall be endorsed "constitution with slavery" and "constitution with to slavery;" that if a majority of the ballots are cast for the former, then the constitution shall be immediately transmitted to Congress; but if it shall appear that the majority is in favor of the "constitution with no slavery," then is thall in no manner be interfered with."

If on summing up the votes it shall be found that a majority is in favor of striking out the slavery clause, that fact will of itself make Kansas a free State. Where, then, is the justice of accusing the democratic party in Kansas of the design of thwarting the will of the majority? They have on all occasions acted upon the great principle laid down in the Kansas-Nebraska bill, that the people shall act for themselves. They can now vote for or against slavery by the provisions of the constitution to be submitted to the whole people of Kansas on the 21st inst., and yet a few discontented spirits are endeavoring to continue a "factious opnosition to the action of the Kansas convention. Indiscontented spirits are endeavoring to continue a "factious opposition to the action of the Kansas convention. Instead of looking for new difficulties and troubles with which to inflame the public, we should all unite in mutual congratulations that an angry and alarming issue has found its peaceful solution in the vindication of a great principle. Those who would have forced upon the people of Kansas either a slave or a free State, against the will of her people, will be disappointed in the result; but all who are willing that Kansas should decide for herself the question of slavery will commend and approve the action of her convention."

At a meeting of the Frankfin Literary Society, of which he was member, the following resolutions were adopted:

Mass May's Second Concert.—The following notice of Miss May's debats, from the pen of an accomplished lady of this city, does full justice to our metropolitan "child of song," and to the appreciative audiences which have given her a triumphant welcome home. The programme of her second concert was well calculated to show the compass of her voice, her thorough training, and the brilliancy of her execution. She was received with enthusiastic applause, and merited the approbation bestowed during the evening by the talented and refined audience.

Mr. Frazer made a favorable impression, singing with good taste, and Hr. Harry Sanderson, who performed on the plano-forte in his best style, was loudly applauded.

Mr. Palmer rendered selections from Thalberg and Meyer with an ability that merited a better instrument, combining exquisite beauties with almost marvellous achievements:

Mass Max.—During the last two years fame has now and then wafted to us the name of an American girl (native of Washington city) who had at Milan achieved signal success in the musical world. "Rassin," and others of equal celebrity, pronounced this fair girl destined to shine as a fixed star in their great firmament of art.

In the last two weeks it has been published throughout our city, told in our public drawing-rooms and private parlors, in hall, alley, and shop, that this new star in the musical horizon was filled to its utmost capacity, hundreds leaving unable to gain admittance. The sight presented on entering was a brilliant one—such as might have given pleasure even to Jenny Lind herself. Distinguished statement, with their families—members of the different foreign legations—cabinet ministers, and brilliant belies—with a thick sprinkling here and there of our best residents, appreciators of music of a high intellectual grade—these constituted the audience. After the confusion of scating the crowd had subsided, and just before the opening "Faustore by Sanderson, the door in the rear of the platform opened, and a lovely-looking girl appeared, and was greeted with thunders of applause. Her face wore a half-solemn, half-joyous look as she stood gracefully bowing to the thundering throng—a look such as Eve must have worn when her foot first crushed the dews and flowers of Eden. Sweet Julia May! bend they brow to the halo! tread upon the roses, for thou deservedst all.

Those of our readers who expect an elaborate criticism of Miss M. 's voice, clothed in musical technicalities, will find their anticipations at fault. We are no musician—that is, we cannot express ourself scientifically; but perhaps you will understand us, dear reader, when we say that her singing caused tears to flow room our eyes and made our heart throb more quickly. As we listened to be revening on being called out the third circle.

When her vital lamp burns low, and the silver cord begins to untwine, may she be able to look with eyes of hope and tearful rapture to a place prepared above, and call it—Home!

Miss M. is the only daughter of a widowed mother, and niece of the venerable and beloved editor of the National Intelligencer. Her concert of last evening—which space will not permit us to notice—was thought to surpass her first effort. Her "Casta Dived" was exquisite.

M. J. W.

THE CONCERT THIS EVENING.—It may be said with truth art, and crowned with the wreaths of every muse," but it is not often that such a combination of talent is presented as will be heard at the concert this evening. Frezzolini is one of the recognised "queens of song," and not only executes with astonishing facility the difficulties of Madame Strakosch is a universal favorite, who always wins the hearts of her audiences; Thalberg and Vieuxacceptably perform; and Herr Kletzer, whose perform ance on the violoncello has been so warmly praised, will also appear. Such a galaxy of talent cannot fall to attract a large and an appreciative audience, especially as this is the last appearance of this party in the city.
